Wanted—To know the whereabouts of the Taft boom.

A man set in his ways will hatch out trouble for himself.

Folks at Cleveland showed in Tuesday's election that they would prefer to ride with Tom Johnson on a three cent street car ticket.

The Independence League as one of William Randolph Hearst's political assets has been discounted, although times in New York are hard.

"There is need of more currency" declares the New York Times. If we can't get more we'll be satisfied with a bunch of Clearing House certificates.

It is again announced from Washington that President Roosevelt cannot accept a nomination for a third term. He has our consent to standpat on that proposition.

It is a lucky man who is not given away by somebody's book-keeping. Again the opportunity presents itself for this advice: Don't have anything charged, if you can help it.

It is believed in New York that things that we have to eat and articles that it is necessary to wear will be reduced in price. Consumers will be glad but sellers will be sorry.

Most everybody in trouble appeals to President Roosevelt but when New York got panicky she concluded that it was Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou that she needed him in her business.

Several society girls in Washington have postponed "coming out" until next Winter when President Roosevelt's second daughter, Miss Ethel, will be a debutante. In the meantime elligible young men will be taken in by the girls who are not coming out till they get good and ready.

Congressman Burton was too good and useful a man to be persuaded by President Roosevelt to go up against a tough proposition like Tom Johnson, Cleveland's Democratic mayor. After the election on Tuesday, Cleveland's city clerk sent this saucy message to President Roosevelt: "As usual Cleveland again went moral. The next time you tell Burton to run kindly tell him which way."

The directors of the American Cotton Oil Company, at their meeting in New York, on Thursday made a good showing for the past year's business. The net profits were $1,755,346. A semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. on the preferred stock was declared, and a dividend on the common stock would have been declared but the directors decided that in the face of the money stringency that fund would be kept in the company's locker.

ALDERMEN TO-NIGHT

Special Meeting of Board to Hear Report of The Investigation Committee.

EXAMINATION OF BOOKS

This Was Completed by Members of Commission as Committee of Citizens Yesterday Afternoon—Interesting Developments.

A special meeting of the Board of Alderman is called to be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the Mayor's office at the City Hall for the purpose of receiving a report from members of the Water and Sewerage Committee, who were appointed as a committee of citizens last Monday morning, to investigate "the present earning capacity of the Clarendon Water Works Company and report back to the Board the result of their findings, with recommendations as to what action shall be taken," in view of the Board's action in rescinding the former order authorizing the purchase of the plant.

A call for the meeting was issued yesterday evening by the Mayor at the request of Col. Walker Taylor, chairman of the committee, who stated that at that time his committee would be ready to report. This request for a meeting on the part of the committee following an examination of the books of the company yesterday afternoon at the office of the water works on Princess street. There were present all members of the committee, Col. Taylor, Mr. C. W. Worth and Mr. M. W. Jacobi, while Mr. Robert C. Cantwell was present as keeper of the clearance books for the company and Superintendant Robertson as keeper of the books covering operating expenses. What the result of the examination of the books was members of the committee declined to discuss after the meeting, neither was any intimation given as to the probable contents of the report to the Board tonight. It is safe, however, to say that the committee will probably recommend that the city begin anew the negotiations for the purchase of the property and that these negotiations will be predicated upon the earnings of the plant as they are now found to be since the installation of the filter plant., which greatly increased operating expenses since 1906, which basis was given and taken when the first agreement was reached. The committee in making an examination of the books yesterday did not employ an accountant as the recommendation of the Board empowered them to do at the city's expense, but it is understood that the gentlemen composing the committee, all business men and more or less acquainted with figures, delved quite extensively into the records of the company for the past several years and will be able to give the Board an intelligible estimate of the value of the plant when they appear tonight. It is also safe to say that any recommendation that this committee makes will largely govern the action of the Board of Aldermen, members of which have unbounded confidence in the business judgment of the committeemen.

Upon the return of Hon. John D. Bellamy, counsel for the Company, yesterday morning, it is understood that a meeting of the stockholders was held, but what action, if any, was taken was, of course, not divulged. It is believed, however, that the city and company will reach some kind of an understanding and that a trade will be made on some basis. In the meantime the public is awaiting with much interest the progress of the solution of a very knotty problem.

VIOLETT MEETINGS GROWING

Large Crowds Attending Services at Tabernacle Church

The Church of Christ Tabernacle at corner of Seventh and Orange streets is filled each evening with large congregations to hear Evangelist Violett, who is preaching with great power and interest. The hearers of this gifted preacher are giving him their undivided attention and a great work is being done. Thursday night there were many enlistments in the cause of Christ and the community is being deeply moved. The singing by the congregation led by Prof. O. J. Marks is one of the inspiring features of the services. Evangelist Violett is also a soloist of good voice and feeling. He was heard Thursday night to good advantage. RESIDENCE BADLY BURNED

Home of Mr. Frank K. Hottal, on North Second Street, Partially Destroyed Yesterday — Hot Ashes the Cause.

A box of hot ashes left carelessly by a servant in a woodhouse in close proximity all but resulted in the complete destruction of the residence of Mr. Frank K. Hottal, yardmaster of the Atlantic Coast Line in this city, at 413 North Second street, yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock. The woodhouse is but a few feet in the rear of the residence and when the flames were discovered they had already communicated to the larger building and were sweeping up the side. An alarm was sent in to the Fire Department from box 26 but when the men arrived with the apparatus, the fire had gotten into the attic and the laddies had a stubborn fight. Finally when it was controlled a damage of more than $500 had been done to the residence proper and the household goods of Mr. Hottal had been badly damaged by smoke and chemicals with which it was necessary to drench the house from above.

The building is owned by Mr. W. A. McGowan, who carried insurance, but Mr. Hottal had not a cent against his loss to furniture and other contents. The house is situated in close proximinty to the residence of Mr. H. L. Fentress, on the south, and Mr. Henry Bowden, on the north and immmediately on the corner of Second and Red Cross streets. But for the good work of the firemen, the flames might have communicated to either or both of these. The firemen had a hard two hours fight with the flames under the roof and in the attic of the house. It was at an hour when many people were going to and returning from dinner and a great crowd gathered in the street to witness the men at their work.

TENTH OF NOVEMBER

Wilmington Light Infantry as Composed in 1898 to Celebrate.

Tomorrow is the ninth anniversary of the racial disturbances in this city on November 10th, 1898, and according to its custom each year since that important event in the city's history, the Wilmington Light Infantry as it was composed at that time will celebrate the occasion. As the anniversary this year falls on Sunday, the observance of the members of the company at that time will be held on Monday evening, the 11th. The celebration this year will take the form of a collation to be served in the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple and members of the company of that interesting period will assemble there with a few guests to enjoy the spread of good things and listen to reminiscenses and addresses appropriate to the anniversary. Col. T. C. James was captain of the company in 1898 and is president of the Association; Col. J. VanB. Metts was first sergeant at that time and is vice president of the Association, while Mr. Robert N. Sweet is secretary and treasurer. Messrs. Guy A. Cardwell and A. P. Adrian were lieutenants of the company but both have now removed from the city. The celebration Monday night will be full of interest and pleasure for all who attend. It is hoped to have present on the occasion Bishop Strange, who is now on a visitation in the diocese, but his presence is not certain. Bishop Strange was chaplain of the company during the trouble in '98.

HEARING POSTPONED

Southern Railway Rate Hearing Deferred Until Last Week in November.

THIS AGREEABLE TO STATE

J. J. Laughinghouse, Jr., Dead—Complaint From Rockingham—Freight Discrimination Hearing—Raleigh Prohibition Election

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 8.—By mutual agreement of counsel an order was made this afternoon by Standing Master Montgomery in the case of the Southern Railway Company, against the Corporation Commission testing the constitutionality of the North Carolina 2 1-4 cent passenger rate act, postponing the further taking of testimony for the State from Monday, November 11th, to November 26th, in Raleigh.

It was on Thursday that an order was sent to counsel for both sides by the Standing Master for the resumption of the hearing next Monday, but there came today, from General Counsel Thom, of the Southern, a letter to the effect that it would greatly inconvenience counsel for the Southern to appear Monday and for the matter to be further postponed to November 26th. This note was not objectionable to counsel for the State, so an agreement was easily reached. Counsel for the State say they had been during the day going forward with the preliminary arrangements, for the hearing next Monday, in that, they were compiling evidence and listing witnesses, it was proposed to introduce.

There is still no intimation as to the possible turn the hearing from the state's viewpoint will take when the case does come up before the Standing Master again.

Colonel J. Bryan Grimes, Secretary of State received a telegram this morning from Greenville announcing the death of J. J. Laughinghouse, Jr., brother of Mrs. Grimes. He died suddenly last night after spending the day bird hunting and apparently in excellent health. He retired last night and about an hour later got up complaining of feeling unwell. Within a few minutes he was dead. A heart trouble is thought to have been the cause. He was 32 years old and a batchelor. Colonel and Mrs. Grimes left Raleigh for Greenville at noon. The funeral is expected to be-at the family burying ground at Greenville tomorrow.

Chairman Franklin McNeill, of the Corporation Commission has returned from Rockingham, Richmond county, where he went on business connected with certain complaints that have been filed against the Seaboard by citizens there.

The Corporation Commission today held a conference with representatives of the shippers of the State who are interested in the pending suit against the Norfolk and Western Railroad Company by the Commission to break up alleged discriminations against Durham and Winston-Salem in freight rates from Cincinnati and other points west to those North Carolina points as compared with rates to Lynchburg and other Virginia cities. This is the suit which the Commission believes is the key note to the situation in stopping the Southern and Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard from discriminating against North Carolina points in their "long hauls" from the west, the short line of the Norfolk and Western having made the rates for Virginia cities which the other roads are forced to meet with their round-about lines if they get any of the Virginia business. T. C. Guthrie of Charlotte, E. J. Justice, of Greensboro, and J. S. Manning of Durham, were here with the Commission for the conference representing the interests of the shippers of the State.

The special aldermanic committee that has been investigating the petition to the aldermen for holding a prohibition-dispensary election in December has about completed its work of canvassing the signatures to the petition as to whether it has enough qualified signers to call the election. They find there are enough if the old municipal registration books are the ones to control, but that if the recent registration for the bond election is the one in force the petition loses. The city attorney will pass upon this matter at once and report to the aldermen this week.

The Raleigh Aldermen tonight received a report from special committee to pass on the petitions for the election on prohibition or dispensary and decided by unanimous vote to order an election December 26th, the day after Christmas. It is generally considered that prohibition will have a walk over in view of the fact that the prohibition element will force most of the dispensary wing of the temperance advocates into line for prohibition and will also have the support of the saloon element by whom it is considered that saloons can best be restored as a successor to prohibition.

Weekly Stock Report Posted Yesterday at Chamber of Commerce. British Steamer of Fine Type Arrives—Naval Stores.

Cotton receipts at the port of Wilmington for the seven days ended yesterday show a falling off from the same week last season for the first time this crop year. According to the stock report posted yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce only 18,583 bales had been received for the seven days ended November 8th, while during the corresponding period last season 21,385 bales were received. The receipts since September 1st, however, are well ahead of last season, the receipts this year to date being 220,412 bales against 168,912 up to the same date last year. The stock report posted yesterday shows 40,649 bales ashore and afloat against 33,074 bales on the same date last year. The exports for the week ended yesterday were 104 bales domestic against 500 same week last year and 24,150 bales foreign against 12,158 same week last year, the total exports being 24,254 bales against only 12,658 same week last year. The total exports to date since September 1st have been 179,408 bales of which 1,608 were domestic and 177,800 foreign, against 134,968 last season, of which 514 bales were domestic and 134,454 foreign.

There are now at the compresses four cotton steamers including the British tramp Tabaristan, 1,836 tons, Captain Payton, which arrived yesterday morning. While her net tons register is comparatively small she is one of the largest ships that has arrived here this season, being 406 feet long with double funnels and has a carrying capacity of from 15,000 to 18,000 bales. She was docked at the compress yesterday and will begin receiving cotton Monday morning.

The weekly stock report of naval stores was also posted yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce. There is a falling off in all items of the market during the week on account of the break in all prices. Only 279 casks of spirits were received against 363 last year; 1,249 barrels rosin against 3,166; tar 184 barrels against 510, and 307 barrels crude turpentine against 593 barrels same week last season. ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Member of Theatrical Company Perhaps Fatally Injured Yesterday Morning.

HIS CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Pistol in Hands of Another Member of Troupe Went Off Without Warning — Ball Through His Intestines.

Francis Marion, 22 years of age, a native of Selma, Ala., and property man with the King Stock Company which is playing an engagement at the Academy of Music here this week, was accidentally shot and perhaps fatally wounded by David Laboy, of Philadelphia, also a member of the company, in the room which the two occupied at the boarding house of Mrs. Gaston D. Phares, 110 1-2 Market street, yesterday morning about 8 o'clock.

The two men with a third member of the company who also occupied the room Thursday night, arose yesterday morning as usual and were dressing to go down to breakfast. Mr. Marion was at a washstand on one side of the room and Mr. Laboy was at a dresser on the other side. Some ink had been spilled on the dresssr and in moving articles thereon, Mr. Laboy picked up a pistol and remarked incidentally to Mr. Marion that the trigger was broken off. Before Mr. Marion could reply the pistol in the hands of Mr. Laboy in some way went off accidentally, the ball entering the left side of the back of the young man at the washstand, ranging through the stomach and piercing several of the large intestines. He exclaimed that he was shot and Mr. Laboy and the other friend in the room rushed down stairs to summon a physician. Dr. F. H. Russell was passing and when he hastily came in and saw the probable extent of the injuries he gave orders for the young man to be hurried to the hospital, where an operation was performed an hour later, the bullet from a 38 calibre pistol being taken out from just under the skin and just below the abdomen, after it had passed nearly entirely through the young man. While it was stated last night that the wound of young Marion is a very severe one, there is a chance of his recovery. He is not robust but has a strong constitution and was resting very well last night. He is perfectly conscious and has made statement after statement to those around him at the hospital that the shooting was entirely accidental.

Mr. Laboy had just arrived the night before to join the King Stock Company and regrets the accident more than he can tell. He remained at the hospital most of the day yesterday and last night willingly gave himself into the custody of Sergeant Grimsley, who had a warrant for his arrest pending the result of the injuries of the wounded man and any inquest that the coroner may have to hold. Bond was placed at $500 but no effort was made by him last night to give this amount. The new law as to accidental shooting in this State is such that all cases must be held over for trial before a jury of the Superior Court as was exemplified at the last term of the court here when the negro Mellett was re-arrested by order of the judge after he had been discharged by the coroner's jury in a case of accidental shooting. Both young men have the sympathy of many friends in the unfortunate occurance. Relatives of Mr. Marion in Selma, Ala., have been telegraphed for and will be here probably tonight.

Mr. Chas. H. King, of the King Stock Company, says that Marion is an exceptionally clever young man, attentive to his duties and a gentleman in every respect. Everything possible is being done for him by the company and also by Mr. and Mrs. Phares, at whose home the unfortunate shooting took place. Marion has charge of all the properties of the company with which he is travelling and also sings the illustrated songs before the curtain between acts. Mr. Laboy is about the same age as Mr. Marion and remained at the police station last night, pending arrangements for the $500 bond required of him.

TWO NEW STEAMERS

Captain Ellis Sherman and Captain J. S. Lewis are Building.

Captain Ellis Sherman and Captain J. S. Lewis, of this city, are building two new steamers at Point Caswell for navigation of the Cape Fear and its tributaries. A gasolene boat with accommodations for eighty passengers and large freights will be christened the "Wonder" and will ply between Wilmington and Long Creek, making three trips weekly. She will go in commission about the 18th of the present month and will be one of the best of the upriver craft. These gentlemen are also rebuilding at Point Caswell the steamer Lisbon, a stern wheel boat which they will put on the line between Wilmington and Clear Run. Work is progressing very satisfactorily and both these steamers will be a great convenience to the shippers along the routes they will ply.

ROOSEVELT'S COURAGE WHISTLE

President Roosevelt says he is sorry Congressman Burton was beaten for mayor of Cleveland. Burton probably is sorry he let Roosevelt persuad him to go up against Tom Johnson. The President has also gone on record as being highly pleased, if not dee-lighted, with the result of the elections in various States. In Washington on Thursday, after digesting the election situation, and looking for rays of hope, the President gave out this statement regarding the elections on Tuesday:

"The President regards the results of the elections as extremely gratifying. He has sent a letter of hearty congratulation to Mr. Heney on the result in San Francisco. The victory in New Jersey was precisely what happened nine years ago in the middle of President McKinley's administration. He had carried New Jersey by 88,000, and two years afterwards the Republican candidate for Governor had 5,500, the vote being cut down, just as happened in the case of Judge Fort.

"As compared with the elections next preceding the last Presidential election, we have done decidedly better than we did in 1903. Then, as Tuesday Rhode Island and Maryland went against us; but this year we have won a sweeping victory in Kentucky for the first time since McKinley's election. And the victory in Massachusetts was also remarkable. The showing in Pennsylvania and Nebraska is equally good. The showing in New York State, as a whole, was excellent, far better than was the case prior to the last Presidential election.

"That the result in Manhattan was due to purely local causes is shown by comparing it with the decisive triumphs in Brooklyn, Buffalo, Albany, and in the State generally. The President's own home county of Nassau made a better showing than it ever has in an off year. As a whole, the showing has been an improvement over what it was four years ago and eight years ago."

The President probably gave out the above to keep up the courage of his Republican friends, but if he had read the New York Times of Thursday morning he would have seen some logical reasons why he should have been somewhat disappointed in the election results. The The Times sized up the result as a rebuke to the policy of the Administration. Says that able paper, in the introduction of a long editorial:

"When we ventured yesterday morning respectfuly to call the attention of Mr. Roosevelt to the election returns from New Jersey we had no desire to exaggerate the significance of those returns as compared with others, but only to emphasize, what must be plain enough to Mr. Roosevelt, the fact that the feeling he has himself aroused found peculiar expression in that State.

"No doubt Mr. Roosevelt has studied and will continue to study the figures throughout the Union with that keen sense of popular sentiment in which he has few rivals, and with a sincere desire to interpret them for the real advantage of his party and for that of the whole country. He will, we think, find much that will serve for instruction, and possibly something of reproof. He will note that the munipal election in Cleveland, in which he insisted that the issue should be accepted as National, has gone against the candidate whom he particularly favored and whom he allowed reluctantly to quit Congress in order to perform a greater service, as he proclaimed, in that campaign. He will note that in Massachusetts, where the opposition to the Republican party was split hopelessly into three different and contending factions, the Republican candidate has a majority of only some 17,000, against majorities in the last three years running from 22,000 to 75,000 and the question will be inevitable, What would have been his fate had opposition been united? In New Jersey, though the Republican party has escaped defeat by a narrow plurality, Mr. Roosevelt will perceive that his own plurality of 80,0000 and that of Governor Stokes of 51,000 have almost completely vanished .

"Of course, no one will perceive more clearly than Mr. Roosevelt that these striking changes have taken place in a series of scattered contests with an opposition party singularly torn by internal dissentions and for strong leadership."

The Times goes on to tell President Roosevelt how he can regain his prestige, and concludes with this remark:

"Of one thing he may be sure—the confidence in him which has undoubtedly to a marked degree been shaken, can be restored and strengthened only by himself. By himself, we are persuaded, with his rare energy, his courage and persistency, it can be done."

A convenient thing about being rich is if you don't pay your bills nobody cares.

You can't help liking the man who gets hurt and says he isn't.

GOLD HARD TO HANDLE.

The big steamship Lusitania, which arrived in New York from Queenstown on Thursday night, broke all previous records across the ocean, coming this way. What most interested New York, however, was the fact that she brought $10,000,000 in gold to help in the work of relieving the financial situation. This is the second treasure ship to arrive in New York. A few days ago the steamship Kronprinzessin Cecile brought $8,000,000 in gold for the relief of the American money market.

Speaking of the $8,000,000 yellow plunks brought by the Cecile, the New York Worl reminds us that the reason why gold appears in pay envelopes during a scarcity of money is that it is heavy to carry in bulk—to send South or West for crop-moving purposes, for instance. A common gold brick weighs about two pounds. A gold brick 2 inches by 4 by 8 would weigh more than 40 pounds and be worth some $11,000. Few men could carry a bag of $50,000 in gold very far. Cast in one solid block the $8,000,000 brought by the the Cecile would measure only about 4 feet by 3 feet by 2 feet. However, it would weigh 15 tons.

If an individual of peculative predilictions were to break in where the $8,000,000 was stored in the ordinary, small-sized gold bricks, as it comes from the gold mines, it would take him more than two weeks to carry it off, making one trip each night and carrying all that he could grunt under. Wall street speculators, however, may be able in one of their deals to transfer the whole pile to their account, and leave the other fellow to do the grunting.

Speaking of gold, the United States mint at Washington got busy during the past few days and on Wednesday put in circulation one hundred thousand $10 gold pieces, making $1,000,000 in all. The coins are made from the new designs, and many people will regret to learn that for the first time in a half century for coins of over 25 cents the words, "In God We Trust," are omitted. In other words, that has been left off the new coin design. The obverse bears the American eagle, with its west side to the front and feathers on its legs. The reverse has the Liberty head with war bonnet. Around the edge, instead of the customary milling, are 45 stars.

MILLIONS GOING OUT, NOTHING COMING IN.

The Savananh Morning News remarks:

"Banker Henry Clews is inclined to the opinion that much of the recent money stringency is due to the fact that not less than $900,000,000 of money has been taken out of the country by American heiresses marrying foreign noblemen. In addition to this must be considered the millions taken out of the country to the Philippines and to Panama. These three sources of heavy drainage have never given us any return."

It must be remembered also that Americans are investing millions of money in Mexico and some South American countries. It is said that we are literally pouring millions into Mexico especially, and while some of those investments pay American investors a profit or fair interest, the capital leaves this country and adds to the wealth of Mexico and is paid out in wages to the Mexicans, thus really constituting another drain on our resources. However, that is not as bad as the output on the foreign marrying men, the Philippines and Panama, in which cases it is all going out and nothing coming in. That's what would make an individual soon reach the end of his row and it certainly must have its effect on our capital resources, even if they are immense.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—The view of the Norfolk Landmark is that "if the tobacco trust intends to retaliate by stopping the manufacture of cigarettes, let it go ahead with the stoppage." The idea is good enough, but we fear it is too good to be true.—Charlotte Chronicle.

—The money famine in every town will be decreased if every man will pay his debts, or as much of them as he can, promptly. One dollar kept moving will do more good than an hundred dollars locked up. The man who locks up his money, little or much, is helping to intensify the money scarcity.—Raleigh News and Observer.

—The death of Mr. N. Jacobi, of Wilmington, removes one of the best citizens of the State from active usefulness. His good deeds will live after him. He was an enthusiastic Odd Fellow, and was diligent and earnest in caring for the orphans, a trait of manhood that should be found in larger measure in more of our people.—Newbern Sun.

—The Evening Times yesterday printed the list of decisions handed down last afternoon by the Supreme Court, but that $30,000 fine case was again missing. It is now up to the Raleigh correspondent who decided the case for the court some two weeks ago to secure official approval of his apparently precipitate action.—Raleigh Times, Nov. 7.

What's the Use of paying more for an article through prejudice, than you can buy for less, that's just as good?

Take Whiskey, for Instance.

We make but one charge—just for whiskey—that's all. When you pay more than we ask for our whiskey you are being taxed for something else besides the whiskey.

Now "WHAT'S THE USE" of you paying an excess to anybody for imaginary superiority—when we have the same goods, but are content through immense volumes of sales, to break even on profits—instead of "hikeing up" the price beyond the point of giving you value received.

"CHESTERFIELD" products are "AS GOOD AS THE BEST FOR LESS." That's the reason "CHESTERFIELD" Whiskies are popular.

A Star Business Local Is a Good Investment. A Trial Proves.

PROVED HIS ABILITY.

A Tenderfoot's Wonderful Feat In Herding Sheep.

In the west they tell this story about the east, perhaps by way of retaliation for some of the tall stories about the west that they tell down east.

A young man, just graduated from an eastern institution of learning, went to the west and applied at a large ranch for a job.

"What can you do?" asked the owner.

"Nothing much, but I'm willing to work and can learn," replied the eager applicant.

"Know how to ride a horse?"

"No, I never rode one in my life."

"Rather a slim chance for you to be useful here, I'm afraid."

"What have you to do for a man if he could ride?"

"Herding sheep."

"I think I could get along at that very well without a horse."

"Young man, I'm afraid you don't know much about this business. I have a large ranch here and some thousands of sheep. A man without a horse would make a pretty poor show."

"Well, I'll tell you; when I was at college I was the champion sprinter of the institution. I believe I could do you some good service. I have a long distance record too. I wish you'd give me a chance and let us see what I can do."

With a good natured but pitying smile the ranchman said all right and bade his new man to get some supper, turn in and be ready to go to work early the next morning.

When the employer rose next morning he saw the new employee coming in from the direction of the sheep quarters. Somewhat surprised at the young fellow's enterprise in getting up so early, he accosted him:

"Well, you're up and ready to go to work, are you?"

"Oh, my, yes! I've been at work for two or three hours."

Then the ranchman noted that the tenderfoot was dressed in working clothes, a sweater, and already looked rather flushed. "What have you been doing?" he asked.

"Driving those lambs into the corral."

"What lambs? I have no lambs. This is not the lamb season."

"Well, I chased eighty-five of them in, and I tell you I had a time of it too."

The ranchman went with the young tenderfoot to see what the story he told was about.

And, sure enough, huddled up together, frightened and tired out, were eighty-five wild jackrabbits.

"All right, young man; I think you'll do," said the ranchman.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Bismarck Duel.

A duel in which Bismarck was once engaged had a very amusing origin. It occurred when he was chief secretary of the Prussian legation at Frankfort. He went much into society and one Christmas attended a big ball. During the height of the festivities Bismarck's attention was directed to an exceedingly pompous individual who strutted about the room. This was a M. de Clancy, a noted French duelist. Later on this important individual took part in the dance, but having omitted to leave his hat at the proper place had perforce to hold it out almost at arm's length while he danced. The spectacle tickled Bismarck immensely, and, as the Frenchman came sailing majestically along, Bismarck stepped forward and dropped a coin into the hat. A duel was one of the next day's events. Though it was with pistols Bismarck escaped unhurt, while his adversary was wounded.

Put Crape In Windows.

Passengers on the Second avenue elevated road witness one custom that seems peculiar to the people living in the flats along that line of travel. They frequently see streamers of crape tied to the second and third story front windows that open on fire escapes. Somehow the bereaved relatives feel that crape on the flat house door will not indicate with sufficient clearness which family has suffered loss, so to point out exactly the rooms where mourning exists the windows are hung with crape.—New York Press.

As London Sees Us.

In an article on smoking the Westminster Gazette of London says:

"At Washington senators not only smoke in committee rooms, but in the senate itself. Often a Washington 'orator' has been known to deliver a peripatetic speech, attending to his cigar at regular intervals, and followed by a crowd of reporters eagerly taking down his utterances."

Exact justice is commonly more merciful in the long run than pity, for it tends to foster in men those stronger qualities which make them good citizens.—Lowell.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit Mich.

As Colonel Taylor has been for a long time vice president of the Mechanics', and was practically in charge of its executive affairs during the failing health of Mr. Jacobi for some monthes prior to his death, he is well acquainted with the duties of his new and higher position, and will enter upon them as no stranger.

No Smallpox Here.

Local health authorities are unable to account for the reference to Wilmington in the following from this week's issue of the Sampson Democrat: "We hear of a little smallpox down in Taylors Bridge township. It originated elsewhere, however. A negro man came up from Wilmington sick, stopping with his parents on the place of Mr. J. M. Powell. Dr. G. M. NAVIGATION AND PILOTAGE

Important Meeting Held in This City On Wednesday—Rules.

(Reported for the Star.)

An important meeting of the Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage was held on Wednesday, November 6th, at which all the members were present. There were also present Major H. C. Schumm, U. S. A., Commander of Fort Caswell, and Captain F. A. Mould, U. S. A., who discussed with the board some matters of importance, looking to the Co-operation of the Commissioners with the military officials, in reference to the coast defenses.

A printed pamphlet prepared by the Chairman of the Board, entitled: "Port and Harbor Regulations of Wilmington, N. C." was adopted in full; but, in view of a protest from Mr. M. Corbett, representing steam tug interests, and from Mr. Davis, attorney at law, of Southport, representing pilots who had not provided themselves with the means required by the Board of Commissioners for boarding and leaving vessels at sea, it was agreed that rules Nos. 16 and 17, forbidding the use of tug boats and fishing boats or any other means of boarding vessels at sea, by which the pilotage fees were divided with other interests, would be inoperative until further notice from the board. An urgent plea was made for six months' suspension of these rules, but the board refused to fix a specified time, and will probably take further action on this matter at its regular meeting in December.

There seems to be a strong determination on the part of the Commissioners to separate the pilotage system from any influence or connection with the tug boat and fishing boat interests, and to insist upon the pilots providing for themselves and their service, separately or collectively, proper facilities, free from the entanglements which have hitherto interfered with the discharge of their duties.

The board has also discountenanced and will eventually prohibit the practice of pilots leaving their stations at the bar to seek engagements at neighboring ports by vessels bound for the Cape Fear, thereby weakening the effectiveness of those who remain at their stations and are ready to board ships at the bar.

CONFERENCE AT NEWBERN

Methodists Will Gather There Early In December.—Changes.

The four Methodist congregations in Wilmington are now rounding out their fourth quarters preparatory to the annual conference which wil open this year on the fourth of December with the church at Newbern. This has been a most prosperous year for Methodists in Wilmington and all the churches will carry excellent reports to the Newbern sessions. The conference will be of especial interest to Wilmington people because at this session Rev. N. M. Watson, now the beloved pastor of Grace church, having completed his fourth year, will be transferred to another charge. He is easily one of the strongest men in the conference and in Wilmington is universally beloved by the whole people regardless of denominational lines. It is known that he will receive one of the best assignments in the conference, for his ability is recognized, but Wilmington people do not at all cherish the idea of his leaving here.

Not only will all the Wilmington pastors of Methodist churches attend the Newbern conference but there will be one or more lay delegates from the district conference and Mayor William E. Springer will attend as chairman of the Conference Finance committee, a member of the Conference Committee on Education. He is also one of the trustees of Trinity College and of the Methodist Orphanage at Raleigh.

Italian Colonists are Choice.

Apropos the arrival of thirty recruits for the St. Helena Colony of the Carolina Trucking Development Company day before yesterday, the following paragraph from the Pender Chronicle will be read with interest: "Five Italians came in Saturday, but as they were a diffrent type from ours, they coming from Southern Italy, the colony sent them away next day."

Police Court Yesterday.

There were but few cases before the Mayor yesterday. Lottie Davis, colored, arrested Thursday evening by Officer J. S. Lane at Eighth and Queen streets for being drunk and disorderly, was given thirty days on the farm. George Gillespie, a negro arrested some time atgo, charged with being implicated in a cutting affray with a deadly weapon, but was found not guilty and discharged.

Lieutenant Chase Resigns.

On account of a press of business engagements Lieutenant H. M. Chase commanding the Wilmington Division of Naval Reserves, has resigned. Yesterday's Raleigh News and Observer says: "Adjutant General Robertson has received the resignation of Lieutenant H. M. Chase, of Wilmington, lieutenant commanding the Wilmington division of the naval militia. The resignation has been accepted and an election has been ordered to fill the vacancy."

THEY GAVE THE BALLS.

And the People Danced to Pay the Debts of Louis XIV.

In 1712 Louis XIV. favored the opera, then established in the first salle of the Palais Royal (there have been two), with a special mansion for the better accommodation of its administration, archives and rehearsals. This hotel is situated in the Rue Nicaise. The building was generally designated under the name of Magasia, whence the term Filles du Magasin (not de magasin), which was applied not only to the female choristers and supers, but to the female dancers themselves. It so happened that the king forgot to pay his architects and workmen. In order to satisfy them the Chevalier de Bouillon conceived the idea of giving balls in the opera house, for which idea he received an annual pension of 6,000 francs. He was paid, but the king's debtors were not, for, although the letters patent were granted somewhere about the beginning of 1713, not a single ball had been given when the most magnificent of the Bourbon sovereigns descended to his grave.

One day shortly after his death d'Argenson, the then lieutenant of police, was talking to Louis' nephew, Philippe d'Orleans, the regent. "Monsignore," he said, "there are people who go about yelling that his majesty of blessed memory was a bankrupt and a thief. I'll have them arrested and have them flung into some deep underground dungeon." "You don't know what you are talking about," was the answer. "Those people must be paid, and then they'll cease to bellow." "But how, monsignore?" "Let's give the balls that were projected by Bouillon." So said, so done, and the people danced to pay Louis XIV.'s debts, as, according to Shadwell, people drank to fill Charles II.'s coffers:

The king's most faithful subjects we
In 's service are not dull.
We drink to show our loyalty
And make his coffers full.

Mr. B. is very proud of his ancient lineage and never lets slip an opportunity to boast of it. MAN'S MINIATURE FAILINGS.—Let Bill Smoke Around the House if It Keeps Him at Home—Don't Expect a Mere Male Biped to Be a Paragon of Propriety—His Physical Comfort.

[Copyright, 1907, by Casper S. Yost.]

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL—It takes some women longer than others to wake up to the fact that their husbands are not truly and absolutely and altogether perfect, and some are likewise slower than others in becoming reconciled to the commonplace. I don't know what you expected of Bill, but it seems to me that I have already put it pretty plain to you that whatever it was he would fall considerably short of the mark, being human and a man. And it's a mighty good thing that he does, too, for woman's ideal man won't fit into the everyday life of this practical age. He'd be run in by the cops before he got a block away from home just on suspicion. He'd be as lonesome as the little boy that got lost in the cornfield. Did I ever tell you that story? Remind me of it the next time I'm at home. It's a pretty good story, but just now I've got some things to say that will be hard to keep within the limit of a two cent stamp.

You present a pretty big indictment against him. At any rate, I've no doubt it looks that way to you. You say that he wants to smoke at home; that he drops various and sundry things, like magazines and cuffs and such, around the house, and that sometimes in the evening he even goes so far as to put his feet on the library chairs. That's awful, simply awful! But, my dear little girl, it might be worse. These are grievous shortcomings; I'll have to admit it, even though I plead guilty to them myself. But these very failings prove to me that my estimate of William is correct. He's just a man, a plain, ordinary man, but still he is a man. Somehow or other we just can't make our conduct jibe with the rules laid down for the pure, the good and the beautiful, and when a woman gets a man whose faults are home grown she'd better accept them with resignation and thankfulness and then proceed to make virtues of them.

No Nonsense About Billy.

For virtues they can be, little girl, though they are negative. The very charges you make against William indicate to me that he loves his home, and when a man manifests an affection for his own fireside you can bet your sweet little life that he has in him the materials that good husbands are made of. Your charges show me that he spends his evenings at home and that he is up in the morning clear headed and ready for business. They show me that there is no nonsense about Billy. He isn't one of those fellows who want to embroider violets on the summer clouds. He's on to his job. He recognizes the fact that the chief object of his existence is to provide bread and oleo and a few other things, like stuffed olives and embroidered shirt waists, for you. Therefore and consequently he must hustle. You probably don't know it—few women do—but it's a pretty serious proposition, this business of taking care of a family. It's a responsibility that mighty soon takes the superfluous sentiment out of a man. Understand me, now, I said superfluous, the kind that slops over and runs down the sides like molasses on a jug, just as sweet as that on the inside, but gummy and useless.

He even goes so far as to put his feet on the chairs.

A safety valve, as it were.

But, getting back to Billy's faults, I want to tell you how they look to a man, to an old man, who has always believed that good manners and courtesy, which come pretty near being the same thing, are just as important at home and a little more so than anywhere else, but who doesn't look upon the "Handy Manual of Etiquette" as the law and the gospel nor accept as infallible the teachings of the professor of deportment in the young ladies' seminary. And, firstly, as to smoking: That, I admit, is a fault, but it is one with so many saving graces that it really ought to be encouraged by the Society For the Promotion of Domestic Happiness. It is pretty generally accepted that the natural, inborn, innate cussedness of the masculine sex has to have an outlet, a sort of moral or mental safety valve, as it were, to keep it from tearing loose and breaking up things—some of the Ten Commandments, for instance—and it is a fact beyond question that a good cigar or one of its decent substitutes will answer that purpose with less harm to himself and less damage to his surroundings than anything else. You may grant all this and still wonder why he can't do his smoking away from home. If so, your college education is defective, for it failed to teach you some mighty important things about the effects of tobacco on the human system, particularly the human brain. Taken in moderation, its action is at once sedative and stimulating. It promotes digestion, quiets the nerves, and while it tranquillizes the mind it doesn't deaden it. On the contrary, its mental effect is that of oil on a squeaky axle. It makes the wheels run easier and at the same time faster.

On the curbstone alone.

A Man's Physical Comforts.

A good dinner, a comfortable chair, the company of a sympathetic and loving wife and a fragrant Havana make a combination that will carry a man about as near to heaven as he can get on this side of the Jordan. It brings out all that is good in him, removes the worries of the day, straightens out the wrinkles in his brain, makes him more amiable, a pleasanter companion, a better husband. Leave out the cigar, and the cares of business are likely to stay with him; he is grumpy and irritable, ready to quarrel at the drop of the hat and about as entertaining as a lobster salad in the throes of digestion. If you make him go out and sit on the curbstone alone while he takes his after dinner smoke the effect is morally and physically bad, and the first thing you know he'll be chasing off to some place where he can smoke in comfort. That's the beginning of the end. It's a wise woman who lets her husband smoke at home, and if my advice has any weight with you you'll encourage the habit in Billy—in moderation, mind you—but for goodness' sake beg him to get a better brand of cigars than the one he gave me as I was leaving home the last time.

The other habits that you object to are just failings, and they are so nearly universal among the wearers of trousers that their absence would indicate something radically wrong. I don't know why it is, and I don't think the scientific fellows ever tried to explain it, though they have wasted their lives in investigating things of much less importance, but the fact remains that few men can be really, truly comfortable unless they can get their feet off the floor when they sit down. I have a kind of notion that it's one of nature's methods of equalizing the circulation of the blood. Possibly women had the same instinct originally, but ages of cruel repression seem to have effaced it. At any rate, it doesn't appear to worry them, while it does have a pretty considerable to do with the cheerfulness of the other sex. I think I have pointed out to you the importance of making a man comfortable in order to keep him contentedly at home. Well, my dear, pedal elevation is one of the means to that end. I don't suppose you know that Abraham Lincoln used to study law with his feet on the mantelpiece. No? Well, he did, and it was one of the surest indications of his greatness. But I wouldn't encourage Bill to go that far. It's all right in a bachelor apartment, but I'll admit that it is neither pretty nor dignified in the home. Nor is such an extreme elevation necessary to his comfort. A chair will do, any old chair, but don't deny poor William that solace for his evening hours.

The one he gave me.

Disorder Is Man's First Law.

You've probably read somewhere that order is nature's first law. Some old timer with a reputation for wisdom to maintain is said to have been responsible for it. It may be so, but my experience with nature forces me to doubt. However, that's neither here nor there. The point I want to make is that whether nature has any such an ordinance or not, first or last, it's doggoned certain that there's no law of that kind in the statute books of man. You notice I don't say mankind. I mean man, just plain man, with whiskers and starched shirts. With women it's different. Order is not only their first law, but it's the first paragraph in their constitution. That tidy must hang just so; that sofa pillow must stand exactly in this position; for the land's sake, I wonder who raised that window shade so high! Disorder is more truly masculine, and in this respect man is at his best, or, rather, his worst, at home. I am mighty sorry about this; honestly I am. It ain't right. We really oughtn't to lay our umbrellas and newspapers and cigar ashes and other belongings indiscriminately around the house; we oughtn't to muss things up so. But, Lord bless you, little girl, we just naturally can't help it. It's part of the cussedness that's in our blood. Bill ain't any worse than the rest of us. Reason with him, my dear. Show him how much it adds to your work and your worry. Show him how tremendously important it is from the feminine standpoint that everything should be in its proper place and stand at the proper angle. But go at him gently. Tell him about it when he's feeling in a good humor. We're all aware of this failing, but most of us are apt to bristle up when you come at us too suddenly. Maybe you can educate it out of Bill. I hope so, little girl; I really do. But go slow. It's a big job.

I wonder who raised that window shade.

You see, my dear, it all comes back to the very first thing I told you, that men ain't much account anyhow, and you've got to take them pretty much as they come, faults and failings and all, and do the best you can with the material. Your Bill's a good deal above the average, but he's just a man, and you can't hope to make him all that you think he ought to be. If you did so you probably wouldn't like the job yourself after you'd finished and got a square look at it. I wouldn't countenance any vices—don't believe Bill has any—but a wise wife will shut her eyes to many of the faults and failings of her husband, make virtues of others and rub out the rest like your mother used to do my headaches.

You wouldn't like the job yourself.

It's getting late and I've got a hard day's work before me tomorrow, so good night. Your loving old dad,

JOHN SNEED.

P. S.—I opened this to inclose the address of my cigar dealer at home. Tell Bill if he'll ask this man for my favorite brand he'll get a smoke that will make the sun shine on a cloudy day. J. S.

A Wise Mouse.

The cat had watched the little hole in the barn for hours at a time every day, but the wise mouse had watched the cat, and so he had never been caught.

But one night, when the moon was hidden, the mouse sauntered out in search of food. It was so dark that he did not see the cat, who sat behind a bush watching for him. In less time than it takes me to write it the cat had seized the poor little trembling mouse. "Now I shall eat you," threatened the cat as he put the mouse down on the ground, with one paw on his back that he might not escape.

"Very well," sighed the wise mouse, "but will you first grant me one request?"

"Yes," replied the cat, "I will do that, as it is customary to grant last requests to people who are about to die. What is it?"

"I have often listened to your singing and greatly admired it. Will you please sing one song to me before you eat me?"

"With pleasure," replied the cat, for he was very vain about his voice. So he straightened himself up and sang with all his might. He forgot all about the wise mouse until he finished his song, and when he looked around for the applause he expected the mouse had vanished.—New York Press.

One Source of News.

For many years a certain New York paper received society and club gossip from a man whose identity was concealed by a clever ruse. Even his checks were made out to his wife in her maiden name. He furnished information about the doings and wrangles in various clubs—little stories involving people whose names are known by reputation to practically all readers of newspaper columns. He is said thus to have averaged an income of about $10 a week—not much, but enough to buy hats, gloves and canes. He was a most immaculate and apparently prosperous person. It is needless to say that he has never been suspected of this small traffic. A wealthy relative died and left him independent. When some such man furnishes the clew to a delectable scandal he has done a stroke of business that will keep him in small luxuries for months to come.—Whitman Bennett in Bohemian.

It's so easy to fool people that while you are doing it mostly always somebody is doing it to you.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—Magnolia Correspondence: The Chestnut Hill Poultry Farm, Newbury & Taylor, owners, are now running nine incubators and taking off about 500 chicks weekly. They have 300 thoroughbred Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Leghorn hens, and it's worth a trip to see their plant.

—Hamlet, Nov. 7.—The Seaboard has cut off about a dozen train crews running out of this place. This is caused by the light work that that company is doing. It is thought that there will not be any need for further reduction of men at this point. It is said that traffic is unprecedently light for the season of the year.

—Kinston, Nov. 7.: The Kinston banks are paying all checks in full, have done so all the time, and the financial blow in New York has not affected them. There is today over $600,000 in the banks here and they are ready to meet any and all demands, while patrons deposit cash as usual, there being full confidence in the banks here.

—Pender Chronicle: Mr. J. D. Lewis, who was here Tuesday, reported to us the death of Mrs. Henry, the mother of Mr. .W B. Henry, which occurred at her home, near Atkinson, Sunday. Mrs. Henry was possibly the oldest person in this county. If she had lived 31 days longer her age would have been 98. She was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church at Black River and Caswell for over 60 years.

—Clayton, Nov. 7.—Merchants at Clayton are paying for cotton with "due bills"—payable in 20 days. Farmers seem satisfied with this arrangement and sold what they brought to town today, which was about 50 bales. The average price paid was about 10 1-2 cents. Although they said they would like 11 1-2 better ,they didn't kick. One farmer said: "Well, we will be good to them—turn about is fair play—they have sold us goods all the year 'on time,' now we will sell them some cotton on time."

—East Carolina News: On October 30th, at Raleigh, Mr. E. D. Walker, a native of Pender county, passed away. He was born near Long Creek, 80 years ago, and was one of the leading citizens of his county, and spent his life upon the farm. The sorrowing widow and five children survive him. His daughters are Mrs. H. L. Stevens, Mrs. D. L. Woodward and Mrs. Kate Green. The sons are Messrs. E. H. and Duncan DeVane Walker. Mrs. Carrie Peterson, of Clinton, is his surviving sister.

Hamlet, Nov. 8: The Bank of Hamlet is prepared to handle all local business and to pay all depositors the full amount of their deposits, the officers deciding not to limit the amount. The bank is protecting itself by not paying out any money on foreign paper, and is having the support of its local patrons. The only inconvenience that is liable to be experienced here is when the Seaboard checks, amounting to about $15,000, comes in on the 15th. But it is believed that by that time the bank will have arrangements made with the treasurer of the company to take care of the payroll. It is today paying the checks for the dining car department. There is probably no money institution through this section that is in better shape than the Bank of Hamlet.

—Pender Chronicle: At the conclusion of Mr. Moore's very interesting and instructive address here on Monday night, at the Court House, he asked the meeting to name a committee with whom he could meet Tuesday morning and explain the details of the warehouse plan. The following gentlemen were named as the committee; E. McMoore, W. M. Hand, S. P. Hand, H. E. Peterson, A. H. Paddison, J. R. Bannerman, G. C. Highsmith and J. H. Moore. Meeting with the committee, he explained the plan, which was to organize a company, issuing shares of stock at $5 each, farmers growing cotton to take, say, one share for each bale of cotton grown by him. Of course, anybody wishing to do so can take stock. Already about fifty shares of stock have been subscribed, and it is confidently expected that a sufficient number will be taken in a very short time to build a warehouse and start the business going.

—Raleigh News and Observer, Nov. 8: Probated by the clerk of the court and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Wake county yesterday, was a mortgage made by the Norfolk and Southern Railway Company to the Trust Company of America, of New York. This is a "first and refunding mortgage," securing $25,000,000 5 per cent sinking fund gold bonds. The instrument contains 90 pages and 26,500 words. The registration fees amounted to more than $28. It has to be recorded in every county in which the Norfolk and Southern has lines. The mortgage is given for the purpose of paying, redeeming or refunding the bonds and obligations incurred or created by the Norfolk and Southern, or either of its constituent companies; equipping and operating its railroads, and paying indebtedness incurred in respect thereof; acquiring and constructing additions to and extensions of its lines of railroad, making betterments and improvements thereto,etc. The mortgage is dated May 1, 1906, but was not executed until November 2d, 1907.

He Fought at Gettysburg.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: "Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trou ble, and paid out much money for medicine to little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have done for me." Grand tonic for the aged and for female weaknesses. Great alterative and body builder; sure cure for lame back and weak kidneys. Guaranteed by R. R. Bellamy, druggist. 50c.

A CASTILIAN BRAVADO

NERVE OF THE HAUGHTY DON

Striking Description of the Daring and Courage Displayed by the Old General Who Would Not Permit an Englishman to Outdo Him.

The realistic Spanish novelist, Valdes, in one of his most popular stories ("Sister San Suplice," translated by Nathan Haskell Dole) gives a description of a retired Spanish general's afternoon out which will illuminate many chivalric incidents in Spanish life and aptly illustrates the reckless daring and courage of which the average haughty don is liberally possessed. The scene is a sort of picnic grounds in the outskirts of Seville:

"Meantime the animation had been on the increase among the ruffians. The period of unmannerly action had come. One of them climbed upon a table to make a speech, and then the others, by way of applause, threw sherry and manzanilla in his face. Another was trying to lift with his teeth a companion whom drunkenness had stretched out on the floor. He did not succeed. He merely tore his sack coat. Still others were committing absurd and extravagant actions, making a great noise and uproar.

"The count remained grave and silent, drinking one glass of sherry after another. But his eyes were no longer, as usual, incomprehensible and unfathomable, like those of a man tired of life. Though he did not speak or move about he seemed a different man.

"The Englishman had taken off his jacket and waistcoat and, rolling up his shirt sleeves, was exhibiting his biceps, which were really powerful, and trying to break empty bottles on his arm. Once blood had come, but he went on breaking the bottles without paying any attention to it. Then he asked the waiter to bring a bottle of rum and a large glass. He filled this to the brim with the liquor, and then slowly, without moving a muscle or even winking, he drained it to the bottom. Then he sat down at the table opposite the count and said solemnly:

"'You can't do that.'

"A flash of fury gleamed through the harebrained nobleman's eyes, but he succeeded in restraining himself, and, turning the rest of the bottle into the glass, he calmly ordered the waiter to bring him some pepper. He threw in a pinch of it, then threw into it his cigar ashes heaped up before him and, without saying a word, with the same scornful, contemptuous smile, drained the glass and, not content with that, bit it in pieces. We saw his lips spotted with blood. The company received with oles and shouts of triumph this proof of an unconquerable stomach, in which it seemed as though the national honor were concerned.

"Our neighbors in the other booths must have reached the same happy grade of temperature, for nothing was heard but extravagant shouts, the crashing of glasses, coarse laughter and swearing.

"The count was not yet satisfied with his victory over the Englishman. While he was swallowing with apparent calmness the glasses of liquor which were offered to him he did not cease to devour him with his eyes, carried away by a dull madness, which soon broke out. His eyes, which were the only part of his impassive face that moved, gleamed more and more ferociously, like those of a madman when a straitjacket has been put on him. The Englishman continued to boast of his strength. He was now thoroughly intoxicated and talking impudently enough to the others, who were not so drunk.

"'So you are very valiant, are you?' asked the count, still smiling disdainfully.

"'More than you,' retorted the Englishman.

"Don Jenaro started to spring at him, but the others restrained him. Soon calming himself, he said:

"'If you are so brave, why not put your hand on the table?'

"'What for?'

"'To pin it down with mine.'

"The Englishman without an instant's hesitation stretched out his huge, brawny hand. The count took out of his pocket a damaskeened dagger and laid his delicate, gentlemanly hand on the Englishman's, and without hesitation and with a ferocious grip he raised the point with the other and drove it through both into the table.

"The women uttered a cry of terror. All of us men ran to their assistance. A few left the place in search of help. In an instant our booth was filled with blood. From the wounds great drops of blood streamed, staining the handkerchiefs which we applied to them.

"A doctor who happened to be among the bystanders dressed the wounds provisionally with the few means at his disposal. The count smiled while they were dressing his hand. The Englishman was as sick as a horse, and soon the count was the same, and both were taken to such rooms as the establishment had to offer and went to bed. Every one left, commenting on the barbarism of the deed."

Hit Harder.

"Woman is considered the weaker vessel," she remarked, "and yet"—

"Well?" she queried as she hesitated.

"And yet," she continued, "man is the oftener broke."—Exchange.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, Nov. 8.—There was a more pronounced stirring of speculative activity in the stock market today than at any period since the recent period of disturbance set in.

The manifest pressure to convert into ready resources some very large holdings of the United States Steel sinking fund, and the fact that transfer of the control of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company to the United States Steel Corporation had made large holdings of these bonds available to the most prominent of the former speculative operators gave plausibility to the supposition as to the identity of the principal buying. Market was found responsive to these dealings, and reflected the same scarcity of offerings which has been the negative evidence of returning confidence for several days past. The banks continue their attitude of disfavor towards large speculative operations, but the manifest signs of a resumption of operations on margin on a considerable scale indicated that this obstacle had been overcome in some manner. The advance in the official discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany was practically ignored. It had been clearly forseen, and the continued large engagements of gold for import detracted from its effect.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $4,166, 000. United States bonds were unchanged on call. Total sales of stock today, 438,630 shares.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Nov. 8.—The cotton market today was very nervous and irregular with the close steady at a net loss of 7 to 21 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 300,000 bales.

The market opened steady at a decline of 5 points to an advance of 1 point, the losses being on the near positions in keeping with the English cables. The census report was available at the opening and may have shown slightly less cotton ginned to November 1 than some of the bears had expected but had very little effect on the market which after the opening sold off to a net loss of 11 to 17 points on the active months. Later fluctuations were very rapid and irregular, carrying prices about 10 or 12 points up from the lowest but in the late trading the feature was the relative weakness of the near months under selling which seemed to be for the account of the bull pool with December and January reaching new low prices for the day. The close was at practically the lowest on December but 2 to 6 points up from the bottom on later months. The December premium over January of 43 points at the close last night, was reduced to 35 points at the close tonight. The failure of another New England manufacturing concern and the suspension of two small banks in the western belt were among the bearish factors, while some buying was attracted by the light interior recepits and expectations of an easier money market, as a result of gold imports. Southern spot markets officially reported early were unchanged to 1-8c lower.

Receipts at the ports today 60,000 bales against 39,137 last week and 64,532 last year. For the week 345,000 bales against 340,646 last week and 423,218 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 15,442 bales against 9,416 last year.

Spot cotton closed steady, 10 points lower; middling uplands 10.80; middling gulf 11.05; sales 19,000 bales.

Futures opened steady and closed steady.

The cotton yarn market is somewhat steadier as a consequence of an announcement of curtailment but trading is very limited. Raw wool is lower for some qualities. Buyers are coming into the market preparing for the carpet openings which take place next week.

MONEY NEEDS ARE BEING MET

Leading New York Banks Actively Exerting Themselves to Meet Demands.

CASH NEEDED IN THE SOUTH

Necessary to Have Currency to Take Care of Immense Cotton and Wheat Business — Gold Arrivals Relieving Situation.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, November 6.—The leading New York banks were exerting themselves actively today to meet the demands of their country correspondents and depositors for currency. They declare that the suggestions made from several Western sources that they are not meeting legitimate demands for currency from the West are entirely unfounded and that they are, on the contrary, taking every practicable measure to aid the Western and Southern banks. One of these large banks, with several thousand correspondents, has depleted its reserve by about a quarter during the last few weeks to supply currency where it is most needed and has made large shipments to banks in San Antonio, Galveston, Memphis, Mobile, Atlanta and other Southern points.

The best possible judgment is used in meeting these country demands for currency. It is not usual, except in special cases, to ship all that is asked, but a portion of what is asked, ranging around one-half, is usually shiped, the proportion varying according to the cash strength of the bank calling for additional currency or the supply demanded for legitimate purposes. Special favor is shown to the small interior banks where there is no clearing house, because, it is realized that they are not in a position to count upon co-operation and the use of clearing-house certificates. It is admitted that the cotton movement is seriously checked by the lack of small bills and silver to pay the small growers, and by the inability of the Southern banks to handle the large volume of business accumulating at Southern points. The grain shipments are in better shape owing to the gold secured by the banks of Minneapolis and St. Paul, and arrangements for paying cash in New York on grain bills. The New York banks feel bound to retain a certain proportion of revenue to guard against possible contingency, because they fulfill in substance the function which is fulfilled in London by the Bank of England and in Paris by the Bank of France, as the ultimate resource in emergency.

The aid which is being rendered to the situation is indicated by the fact that the total engagements of gold has now reached $49,250,000. Of the amount engaged the sum of $21,311,000 has already arrived, including $12,361,150, which was laid down from the Lusitania this morning. This gold will afford the basis of nearly $200,000,000 in loans and will materially assist the New York banks in their efforts to meeting the pressure for currency throughout the country. The fact that practically $60,000,000 in currency disappeared from the New York banks within a week, as indicated by the last bank statement, is considered sufficient evidence that the New York banks are doing their best to met the great demand upon them but it is not possible to determine what proportion of this $60,000,000 went West and what proportion went into hoards in New York.

One of the measures which has been a subject of some consultation between Secretary Cortelyou and leading bankers here has been the sale of a block of Panama construction bonds. But it is somewhat doubtful if the offer of the bonds to the public could be made before the acuteness of the pressure for currency has been considerably dulled.

PRINT CLOTH MARKET QUIET

Sales for Week Have Been 25,000 to 30,000 Pieces.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 8.—Sales in the print cloth market for the week are estimated at 25,000 to 30,000 pieces The tone of the market is quiet for all classes of goods. Hardly any interest is being shown by buyers. The present dull spell is expected to extend until the financial situation is more fully settled. The quotations are 28 inch, 64 squares, 5 1-2; 28 inch 64 by 60 4 7-8; 38 1-2 inch 64 squares, 6 1-2; 39 inch, 68 by 72, 7 1-2.

STREAM OF EUROPE GOLD

Nearly $12.000,000 of the $21,000,000 Sent to Various Points in Country—There Will Be No Let Up at All.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, November 8.—The stream of Europe's gold pouring into New York has not been halted here to meet local demands but is allowed to flow through the financial arteries of the United States and relieve the needs of agricutural and other industries generally. Gold importers state that nearly all of the $21,000,000 which has already reached here will soon find its way to every quarter of the country. Nearly $12,000,000 has been shipped to the interior this week. Gold has been shipped from here to Chicago in such large amounts, it is understood in local banking circles, that the issue of circulating bank script in Chicago possibly may not be necessary. The greater part of the $12,000,000 arrived on the steamer Lusitania and of the $28,000,000 still to come some will be immediately expressed to out of town banks.

Never in the history of New York finance, according to gold importers, has there been so much money engaged abroad by out of town banks as at present.

"There need be no fear," said a member of one of the largest gold importing firms tonight, "that there will be a cessation of gold importation because of the increase in the discount rates of the Bank of England and Germany."

He added that without doubt, the greater part of the gold imports are being sent to the country banks, who are making their demands on the local institutions for their balances.

COTTON MILLS INVOLVED

Receivers Appointed for Two New England Concerns.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 8.—Announcement was made today that Henry E. Warner, who on Wednesday was appointed receiver for the Arnold Print Works, of North Adams, has been appointed receiver for the Williamstown Manufacturing Company, of Williamstown, Mass., and of the firm of Gallup and Haughton, of North Adams. Both concerns were affiliated with the print works and with the North Pownall Manufacturing Company, of North Pownall, Vermont, which yesterday passed into the hands of Mr. Warner as receiver. About 6,000 persons are employed in these mills.

The mills involved are the Eclipse, directly under the management of the Arnold Print Works, and employing 1,500 hands and the Beaver under the direction Gallup and Haughton and employing 500 hands, both mills being in this city; the Williamstown Manufacturing Company, a seperate corporation, but with Arnold Print Works officers in control and employing 500 people, and the North Pownall Manufacturing Company, also controlled by Arnold Print Works officers, with 500 hands.

The immediate control of the Arnold Print Works and, through that concern, of the various other companies, is in A. C. Houghton and William Arthur Gallup, his son-in-law. The affairs of all the companies are exceedingly intimate, so that the appointment of a receiver for the Arnold Print Works on the petition of Chas. D. Houghton, a nephew of A. C. Houghton, and a creditor of the Arnold Print Works, followed by receiverships for all the other involved concerns.

The effect of this action is to prevent attachments upon any of the property and any waste in the assets. Under order of the court the business of all properties must continue in the usual course, under the receivership.

The aggregate liabilities are estimated at nearly $10,000,000.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—United States Senator Winthrop Murray Crane, of Dalton, was today appointed co-receiver of the Arnold Print Works, of North Adams, by Judge Lowell in the United States Circuit Court on petition of counsel for the creditors. His bond was placed at $100,000.

BAD FIRE IN SALISBURY

Historic Mansion House Block Destroyed—Loss $50,000.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 8.—A special to the Journal from Charlotte, N. C., says:

Fire that broke out early this morning in W. C. Huff's grocery store at Salisbury, N. C., destroyed the famous old Mansion House block, part of which was built before the Revolutionary War and a number of other stores. The loss is $50,000 partly covered by insurance. A number of people were overcome by smoke and rescued by the firemen. It was in the Mansion House block that Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell Steele entertained General Greene and at least on one occasion General Washington dined there.

Captain J. J. Foley, of the fire department, and John Dewey, shipping clerk, were burned to death and several firemen were injured.

HIGH MOUNTAIN IS DISAPPEARING

Curious Result of Teriffic Earthquake Off Alaska About Month Ago.

McCULLOCH PEAK ENGULFED

Mountain Was Thrown Up Out of Sea About Year Since—Recent Quake Felt for Miles—Sea Greatly Disturbed.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

San Francisco, November 6.—Captain Tilton, of the whaler Herman, which arrived today from the Arctic, reports that a terrific earthquake occurred at Unalaska about a month ago and that McCulloch Peak which was created by an earthquake about a year ago, and extended 3,400 feet above the sea, has dwindled to almost nothing, as a result of submarine disturbances.

McCulloch Peak resulted from a volcanic eruption in the Bogoslov islands, and was discovered by officers of the United States Revenue Cutter McCulloch. The place was visited by Boston Scientists, who recently reported that the Peak was increasing in height. The earthquake shock which is believed to have caused its sudden shrinkage was felt for miles around Bogoslov island and Unalaska and at one place a wall of water was thrown up nearly 35 feet out of the sea.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, November 8.—The census bureau today issued its bulletin showing the total cotton crop of this year's growth ginned up to November 1st to be 6,167,600 bales as compared with 6,906,395 bales for 1906. The figures are the result of the investigation of the special agents of the bureau, which in addition to the figures given show that there were 26,135 ginneries in operation as compared with 27,370 for 1906. In the computation round bales are counted as half bales. The result by States for the present year is as follows: Alabama 608,922 bales; Arkansas 293,541; Florida 28,687; Georgia 1,197,895; Indian Territory 191,750; Kentucky 494; Louisiana 277,536; Mississippi 629,485; Missouri 11,589; North Carolina 326,427; Oklahoma 179,749; South Carolina 733,045; Tennessee 109,225; Texas 1,579,496; Virginia 2, 349.

NEGRO FOUGHT FOR FLAG

Would Not Allow Jap to Run His Flag Over Ours.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, Nov. 8.—The Old Dominion Line Steamship Jefferson came into port today with a small fire in her hold. Steam was promptly turned into the forward hold as soon as the fire was discovered and the blaze quickly extinguished. Only one bale of cotton, in which the fire originated, was damaged. News of the fire was kept from the passengers for fear of a stampede.

A Japanese and an American negro had a fight at Olangpo over the right of the Japanese to place his national flag higher than the American ensign on the birthday of the Emperor of Japan. The negro was arrested and the Japanese was sent to the hospital.

SLANDERING THE SOUTH

Alleged That Austrian Government Opposes Emigration.

(By Cable to the Morning Star.)

Vienna, November 8.—The Government today issued a warning against the agents who at present are so busy inducing Austrian and Hungarian emigrants to the Southern States of America. An official circular on the subject calls attention to the alleged peonage system in that part of the United States and recommend people who contemplate emigrating to be very cautious and not folow the advice of the emigration agents until reliable guarantees are forthcoming regarding the prospects for emigrants in the Southern States.

A Hard Debt to Pay.

"I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be paid off," writes G. S. Clark, of Westfield, Iowa, "for the rescue from death, by Dr. King's New Discovery. Both lungs were so seriously affected that death seemed imminent, when I commenced taking New Discovery. The ominous dry, hacking cough quit before the first bottle was used, and two more bottles made a complete cure." Nothing has ever equaled New Discovery for coughs, colds and all throat and lnug complaints. Guaranteed by R. R. Bellamy, druggist. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

At Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday Dock Mack, a negro who criminally assaulted a young white girl in the outskirts of the city about a year ago, was hanged in the county jail. Mack made a lengthy talk, declaring his innocence and prayed for fifteen minutes. He left a note to the press declaring that he was innocent and that some day the authorities would learn their mistake.

WARM WIRELETS.

Vineyard, Walker & Co., private bankers doing business at Eagle Lake, Texas, closed their doors yesterday afternoon and filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court in Houston. There is no estimate of the deposits or liabilities, but a schedule is to be filed.

Federal Judge Waddill, at Norfolk, yesterday, denied the application for an injunction restraining the disposition, except under the order of the court, except as to $200,000 unnegotiated bonds of the Jamestown Exposition Company's $400,000 bond issue, on the ground that there was no necessity at this time for such an injunction. This leaves the bankers' committee, in whose hands the $200,000 in bonds remain, to negotiate or dispose of them.

The 8-yearlold daughter of Matthew W. Anderson, a railroad clerk, early yesterday found the dead body of her mother in the kitchen of their home in Houston Heights, Houston, Texas, her head almost completely severed from the body, the woman having met death at the hands of her husband. An unsigned note from the husband declares that returning home at an earlier hour than usual, he found another man in his home and this being the second such occurrence "I felt obliged to wreak vengeance on my only love." Anderson has disappeared.

A FOG AT SEA.

It Frightens the Timid and Even Discountenances the Brave.

This curious picture of an arrival at the Hook of Holland is by C. Lewis Hind: "I awoke suddenly. It was full daylight. My watch indicated 4 in the morning. We should be nearing the Dutch coast. But why had the boat stopped? Why had the devastating scrunch of the screw ceased? I clambered from my bert'h and withdrew the curtain from the porthole. Sea and sky had gone. We were enveloped in a dense fog. The wail of the siren roused the passengers. A fog at sea unstrings the nerves of the timid and discountenances the brave. I noticed that the landing platform had been extended and that two life lines were coiled upon it. On the bridge were five men. The captain stood in the center with two of his subordinates on either side. They leaned over the rail peering into the wall of fog. I went forward. Three of the crew were bent double over the bows seeking the black mass that might be moving toward us. I could almost fancy I heard the crash, the shouts and the rush of feet.

"The air was damp. I went below. A dozen passengers were gathered around the breakfast table sipping tea and toying with toast. When the siren wailed my neighbor, a girl, who was about to eat a mouthful, replaced the crust upon the table and folded her hands. A woman cried silently. A large, flabby man took the seat adjoining mine, rested his elbow upon the table and covered his eyes. I thought he was praying, but when the steward advanced and stood inquiringly before him he raised his head for a moment and said, 'Ham and eggs.'

"Those homely and unfamiliar words relieved our depression; also the vessel began to move faster. Soon the siren ceased, and when the captain slouched into the cabin and called for a cup of hot coffee we—well, I think some of us could have danced a jig. I went on deck.

"There was Holland. The sun was scattering the fog. We passed the place where the Berlin was wrecked. Pooh! Who minds fear on the morning after, with all the adventures of a new day waiting?"

ENGLISH LOCAL SPEECH.

Peculiar Way the Names of Some Towns Are Pronounced.

We English are horribly phonetic and think nothing of spelling our name Featherstonehaugh and pronouncing it Beecham. If you motor you must twist your tongue to the local speech. There is a quiet village in Kent that is spelled Stalisfield and has achieved the distinction of keeping a railway station at nine miles distance. But if you ask your way to it you must call it Starchfell or you will never find it.

Huntingdonshire claims the purest English, as Hanover the purest German. But by the peasants Papworth is called Parpor. And not far distant is another village of beauty. The motorist turned upon a rough road and asked the intelligent laborer where it would take him. "That road," said the honest countryman, wiping his brow, "will take you to 'Ell, sir." The courageous motorist went on and found Ellsworth, which is merely Elser.

The trouble as to the pronunciation of place names makes one very diffident, a correspondent complains, as to venturing upon pronouncing any that one knows only by the eye and not by the ear. Being a Suffolk man, he knows that Waldringfield is Wunnerful and Chelmondiston is Chimston, while in the adjoining county of Norfolk Happisburgh is Hazebro and Hunstanton Hunston, and visits to the west country have revealed that Badgeworthy is Badgery and Cornwood Kernwood. The result is that he would not dare to make a shot at Uttoxeter or Bathampton, never having happened to hear either referred to by a native. After all, there are unfortunate differences of opinion among Londoners, even as to Southwark, Brompton and the two Bromleys.—London Chronicle.

—Sampson Democrat: Mr. D. L. Boney proves from year to year, by what he accomplishes, that he is one of our best farmers. He produced this year on 50 acres of land, 261 barrels of corn (1,305 bushels). No guess work about it, either, for the corn was all shucked and measured.
